JULY 2023

SUMMARY

Hamilton reported 470 sales and 1,114 new listings. The sales to new listings ratio fell to 42 per cent this month, supporting a gain in inventory levels. While inventory levels rose over the last month, they remain below the previous year's and long-term trends. It is worth noting that homes priced between $300,000 - $600,000 contributed to most of the inventory gains. The rising inventory levels compared to sales caused the months of supply to increase from 1.8 months in June to three months in July.

The unadjusted benchmark price reached $813,000 in July, relatively unchanged over last month and only one per cent lower than the $821,500 reported in July 2022.

PROPERTY TYPES

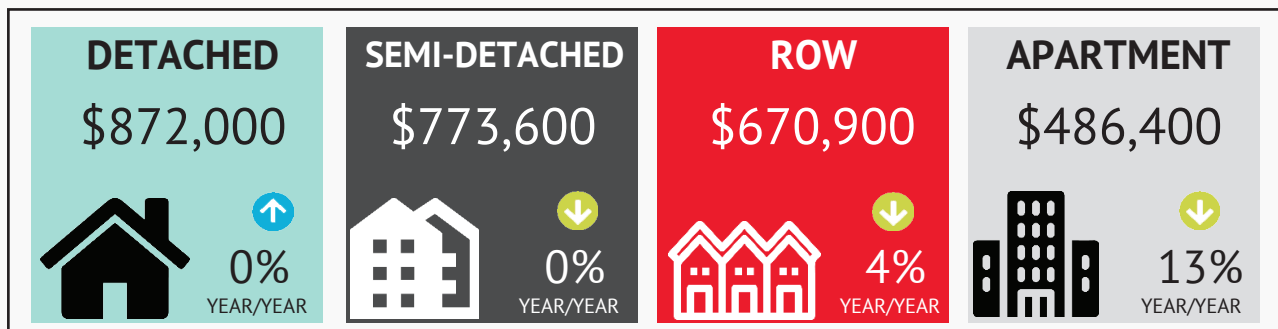

Apartment, row and semi-detached home sales improved over last year, offsetting a pullback in the detached sector. While inventories trended up over the previous month across all property types, only the apartment sector reported higher inventory levels than in 2022.

The months of supply have increased across all property types compared to last month. The tightest conditions remain in the semi-detached sector, with under two months of supply reported. Despite shifts in the months of supply, there have been no significant price adjustments. The benchmark price remains comparable to last month across all property types—row and apartment-style properties were the only sector to fall below July 2022 prices.
